Any person who has been so enjoined and who violates the injunction shall be punished for contempt of court. The injunction shall not relieve such person so practicing architecture or landscape architecture without a certificate of registration, or without first having renewed an expired certificate of registration, from a criminal prosecution therefore, as is provided by this chapter, but such remedy by injunction shall be in addition to any remedy provided for herein for the criminal prosecution of such offender. In charging any person in a complaint for an injunction, or in an affidavit, information or indictment, with the violation of the provisions of this chapter, by practicing architecture or landscape architecture without a certificate of registration or without having renewed an expired certificate of registration, it shall be sufficient to charge that the person did upon a certain day and in a certain county engage in the practice of architecture or landscape architecture, without having a certificate of registration or without having renewed an expired certificate of registration, to so practice, without averring any further or more particular facts concerning the same. The attorney general and the Indiana professional licensing agency may use the registered architects and registered landscape architects investigative fund established by section 32 of this chapter to hire investigators and other employees to enforce the provisions of this article and to investigate and prosecute violations of this article.

Except as provided in subsection (g), the board shall do one (1) of the following before the expiration of the ninety (90) day period:

(j) Notwithstanding any other law, the licensing agency may stagger license or certificate renewal cycles.

(k) An application for a license or certificate is abandoned without an action by the board if the applicant does not complete the requirements for obtaining the license or certificate not more than one (1) year after the date on which the application was filed. 804 IAC 1.1-7-22 Programming; client contact

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 22. (a) Programming is the process of setting forth in writing the owner's requirements for a given project. Steps in this process include:

- (1) establishing goals;
- (2) considering a budget;
- (3) collecting, organizing, and analyzing data;
- (4) isolating and developing concepts; and
- (5) determining needs in general.

The American Institute for Architects (AIA) Owner Architect Agreements presume that the owner will furnish the program and that any involvement of the architect in writing the program will be an additional service not covered in the basic agreement. However, many owners are employing the architect to assist them in this effort. The project will also be affected by the mortgage lender, public officials involved in health, welfare, and safety, future tenants, and, increasingly, the people who will work in the built environment. Their input at the programming stage is essential in order to maintain an orderly design process.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Participating in office conferences with clients regarding programming, periodic reviews, and formal presentations, and assisting in preparing minutes or reports for future reference.
- (2) Assisting with presentations at zoning and variance hearings, and at meetings with financial and government agencies.
- (3) Taking part in visits to existing projects similar to the client's and participating in interviews with the owners and consultants of these projects.
- (4) Assisting in preparing the summary and evaluation of data and requirements obtained from all sources. The summary is the basis for the final written program.
- (5) Researching current literature pertaining to architectural programming.

804 IAC 1.1-7-23 Site and environmental analysis

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 23. (a) Site analysis includes land planning, urban design, and environmental evaluation. Land planning and urban design are concerned with relationships to surrounding areas and involve consideration of the physical, economic, and social impact of proposed land use on the environment, ecology, traffic, and population patterns. Governmental agencies frequently require documentation on the results construction will have on its surroundings (i.e., environmental impact studies). Decisions relating to site analysis must involve the selection, organization, and evaluation of pertinent data that will lead to a resolution of the owner's program while conforming to legal requirements.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Assisting in analyzing several sites to assess the feasibility of their use for a proposed project.
- (2) Helping to analyze the feasibility of using a specific site for the project.
- (3) Assisting in the analysis of the impact of specific land use and location for a project.
- (4) Assisting in the formulation of the most appropriate land use strategy to achieve a desired environmental impact.
- (5) Researching site restrictions such as zoning, easements, utilities, etc.
- (6) Participating in public hearings about land use issues and preparing reports for future reference.

804 IAC 1.1-7-24 Schematic design

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 24. (a) From the owner-approved program, the architect develops alternative solutions to satisfy technical and aesthetic requirements. Preferred schemes are presented until owner and architect can agree on one (1) scheme.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Participating in the development and preparation of preliminary design concepts to determine the spatial relationships that best satisfy the owner's program.
- (2) Participating in the development and coordination of program requirements with consultants.

- (3) Assisting in the preparation of presentation drawings and models.

804 IAC 1.1-7-24.1 Engineering systems coordination

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 24.1. (a) The architect is usually responsible for the selection, design, and coordination of all building systems, including the engineering systems. The emphasis of this training requirement is to develop an understanding of the integration of the engineering systems normally designed by consultants and provided by product suppliers under the direct supervision and control of the architect. These traditionally have included structural, mechanical, and electrical subsystems as well as newer technical innovations and special requirements, such as telecommunications and computer applications. Architects must know how engineering systems work, including system benefits and limitations, availability, cost, and the space requirements necessary to provide the basis for system design, selection, and integration. This knowledge also provides the vital communication links necessary for appropriate interaction with engineering consultants and product suppliers.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Becoming familiar with construction methods and performance of different engineering systems.
- (2) Understanding safety requirements and selection process for engineering systems.
- (3) Assisting in research, analysis, and selection process of engineering systems during the schematic design and design development phases.
- (4) Helping coordinate engineering systems documents provided by consultants into the construction documents produced by the architect.
- (5) Reviewing consultants' drawings for conceptual understanding of systems, space requirements, and possible conflicts or interference of structure, ductwork, plumbing lines, or electrical fixtures.
- (6) Assisting in checking shop drawings, evaluation of samples, and maintenance of records.
- (7) Visiting the job site and observing installation and integration of engineering systems, construction details, and space requirements.
- (8) Attending systems start up, operation, and maintenance meetings required for acceptance and utilization by the owner.
- (9) Obtaining and studying manufacturers' literature for engineering systems and components.
- (10) Becoming aware of relevant codes and regulatory standards applicable to various engineering systems.
- (11) Checking maintenance manuals and warranties submitted by contractors for conformance with contract documents.

804 IAC 1.1-7-25 Building cost analysis

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 25. (a) An important responsibility of the architect is to evaluate the probable project construction cost. Accurate estimates are crucial to the client. They influence decisions involving basic design, selection of building products and systems, and construction scheduling. Long term maintenance, as well as tax impact of material and system selection (value engineering), are additional factors which bear on development of the project. For their own preliminary analysis, most architects use computations based on area and/or volume. Such methods require a limited amount of experience to adjust the unit cost to special conditions of the project. Estimates of cost provided later in the design process are frequently made on the basis of labor and material requirements (quantity surveys), a method which requires a more specialized knowledge of construction costs.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Calculating the area and volume of a project in accordance with AIA Document D101 "Architectural Area and Volume of Buildings".
- (2) Making a simplified quantity takeoff of selected materials and preparing comparative cost analyses.
- (3) Assisting in the preparation of cost estimates of each stage of a project.
- (4) Reviewing various references and text utilized in cost estimating.
- (5) Assisting in the preparation of cost analyses for current projects, using a variety of indices (cost/square foot, cost/cubic foot, unit use, etc.).
- (6) Conducting a survey of current cost per square foot of various types of projects, using local Dodge Reports, Builder's Exchange reports, etc.

804 IAC 1.1-7-26 Code research

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 26. (a) Building inspectors as well as officials in zoning, environmental, and other agencies relating to the health, welfare, and safety of the public, oversee the enforcement of federal, state, and local regulations related to building construction. The codes promulgated by these various agencies have a direct bearing on the total design process, and thorough knowledge of all requirements is essential to the satisfactory completion of any project.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Assisting in searching and documenting codes, regulations, ordinances, etc., for one (1) or more specific projects.
- (2) Studying procedures necessary to obtain relief or variances from particular requirements as they relate to a project.
- (3) Calculating certain variables (i.e., numbers and size of exits, stair dimensions, public toilet rooms, ramps) in satisfaction of code requirements.
- (4) Determining a project's allowable land coverage as well as maximum areas in compliance with zoning and any other related ordinances.

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 28. (a) The working drawings phase of construction documents preparation constitutes the major activity in an architect's office. These drawings describe in graphic form all of the essentials of the work to be done:

- (1) location;
- (2) size;
- (3) arrangement; and
- (4) details;

of the project. As the successful and timely execution of these documents can be equated closely with an office's financial success, architects constantly search for more efficient ways to produce construction documents. No matter what the method of preparation, it is extremely important that the documents be accurate, consistent, complete, and understandable. This requires thorough quality control including constant review and cross-checking of all documents. In addition, effective coordination of the drawings of consultants is essential to avoid conflicts between the various trades during construction.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Working in the preparation of detail drawings, developing technical skills in drafting accuracy, completeness, and clarity.
- (2) Assisting in the correlation and coordination of all documents produced by the architect and the consultants.
- (3) Developing a knowledge of professional responsibilities and liabilities arising out of the issuance of construction documents.
- (4) Participating in the mechanics of reproducing and assembling the finished construction documents.
- (5) Assisting the job captain (or equivalent) in routine administrative/control tasks.

804 IAC 1.1-7-29 Specifications and material research

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 29. (a) Well-grounded knowledge of specification writing principles and procedures is essential to the preparation of sound, enforceable specifications. Unless these skills are properly developed, expert knowledge of materials, contracts, and construction procedures cannot be communicated successfully to the ultimate users. A cardinal principle of specification writing requires the architect to understand, very clearly, the relationship between drawings and specifications, and to be able to communicate in a logical, orderly sequence, the requirements of the construction process. Many factors must be considered in the selection and evaluation of materials or products to be used in a project:

- (1) appropriateness;
- (2) durability;
- (3) aesthetic quality;
- (4) first cost; and
- (5) maintenance, etc.

To avoid future problems, it is extremely important that the architect recognizes the ultimate function of each item to be specified. The architect must carefully assess new or untried materials as well as new or unusual applications of familiar items regardless of manufacturer representations, to be certain no hidden deficiencies exist that might create problems for the owner and expose the architect to liability.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Reviewing construction specifications organization, purpose, and format, and assisting in writing specifications. Reviewing and analyzing bidding forms, insurance aspects, bonding requirements, liens, supplementary and special conditions.
- (2) Researching and evaluating data for products to be specified, including information regarding product availability, cost, code acceptability, and manufacturers' reliability. Attending sales presentations in connection with this research.
- (3) Researching industry standards and guidelines for specific classes of products (e.g., curtain walls, aluminum windows) as they affect various manufacturers' items being considered for acceptability on a project. Researching construction techniques and systems and understanding workmanship standards such as poured-in-place concrete, masonry construction, etc.

804 IAC 1.1-7-30 Documents checking and coordination

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 30. (a) Close coordination between drawings and specifications is required when preparing construction documents. The work of each consultant must be reviewed regularly and checked against the architectural drawings as well as the drawings of other consultants to eliminate conflicts. Before final release for construction purposes, the drawings and specifications must be checked and cross-checked for accuracy and compatibility.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Assisting in cross-checking products and materials called for in the specifications for consistency with corresponding terminology and descriptions on the working drawings.
- (2) Checking drawings prepared by other draftspersons for accuracy of dimensions, notes, abbreviations, and indications.
- (3) Assisting in developing a schedule of lead time required for proper coordination with other disciplines.
- (4) Checking consultants' drawings with architectural drawings and other consultants' drawings for possible conflicts and interferences of plumbing lines, ductwork, electrical fixtures, etc.
- (5) Assisting in the final project review for compliance with applicable codes, regulations, etc.

804 IAC 1.1-7-31 Bidding and contract negotiation

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 31. (a) The architect assists in establishing and administering the following:

- (1) Bidding procedures.
- (2) Issuing addenda.
- (3) Evaluating proposed substitutions.
- (4) Reviewing the qualifications of bidders.
- (5) Analyzing bids or negotiated proposals.
- (6) Making recommendations for the selection of the contractor(s).

(b) The construction contract and related documents are the formal instruments which bind the major parties in the construction phase together. They detail the desired product and the services to be provided in its construction, as well as the consideration to be paid for the product and the services.

(c) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Carefully reviewing the bidding/award stages of previous projects. Developing an understanding of problems encountered and how they were resolved.
- (2) Preparing sample bids using quantity takeoffs from the building cost analysis.
- (3) Assisting in the prequalification of bidders.
- (4) Assisting in the receipt, analysis, and evaluation of bids, including any alternates.
- (5) Learning what information and submittals are required prior to issuance of notice to proceed.
- (6) Assisting in evaluating equal product considerations in preparing addenda.
- (7) Meeting with contractors and material suppliers to better understand problems they encounter with bid packages and construction contract documents. Understanding the role of the lending institution during the bidding process.
- (8) Assisting in the preparation and negotiation of construction contracts and becoming familiar with the Conditions of the Contract for construction in order to identify the architect's, contractor's, owner's, bonding company's, and insurer's roles in the administration of the construction phase.

804 IAC 1.1-7-32 Construction phase; office

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 32. (a) During the construction phase there are many related tasks which do not directly involve field observations:

- (1) processing contractors' Applications for Payment;
- (2) change orders;
- (3) shop drawings and samples; and
- (4) adjudicating disputes; etc.

The architect's handling of these matters will usually have a direct bearing on the smooth functioning of the work in the field. For example, prompt processing of the contractor's Application for Payment, including review of any substantiating data that may be required by the contract documents, helps the contractor maintain an even flow of funds.

(b) Items such as shop drawings, samples, and test reports submitted for the architect's review must be acted upon promptly to expedite the construction process. Changes in the work which may affect the time of construction or modify the cost are accomplished by change orders.

Interpretations necessary for the proper execution of work must be promptly given in writing even when no change order is required.

(c) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Assisting in processing Applications for Payment and preparing Certificates for Payment.
- (2) Assisting in checking shop drawings, evaluating samples submitted, and maintaining records.
- (3) Assisting in evaluating requests for changes, interpretation of documents, and preparation of Change Orders.
- (4) Participating in the resolution of disputes and interpretation of conflicts relating to the contract documents.
- (5) Participating in the assembly of evidence and preparation of testimony to be used before an arbitration panel or in court.
- (6) Researching the legal responsibilities of owners, contractors, and architects by attending seminars and using other supplementary education resources.
- (7) Participating in the preparation of record documents at project completion.

804 IAC 1.1-7-33 Construction phase; observation

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 33. (a) In administering the Construction Contract, the architect's function is to determine if the contractor's work generally conforms to the requirements of the contract documents. To evaluate the quality of materials and workmanship, the architect must be thoroughly familiar with all of the provisions of the Construction Contract. Periodic reports on the stage of completion of scheduled activities are collected and compared to the overall Project Schedule at job site meetings. These meetings facilitate communication between the contract parties and produce a detailed progress record. The architect must determine through observation the Date of Substantial Completion and receive all data, warranties, and releases required by the contract documents prior to final inspection and final payment. In addition to these construction-related functions, the architect interprets contract documents when disagreements occur, judging the dispute impartially, even when the owner is involved. Dissatisfaction with the architect's decision can lead to arbitration or the courts.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Visiting the job site and participating in observation of the work in place and materials stored, and preparing field reports of such routine inspections.
- (2) Reviewing and analyzing construction time schedules. Understanding the various network methods (e.g., critical path method) potentially available to the contractor.
- (3) By review of the contract documents and through professional development programs, developing an awareness of the contractual obligations related to observation of construction.
- (4) Attending periodic job site construction meetings and assisting in recording and documenting all actions taken and agreed to at such meetings.
- (5) Participating in the substantial completion inspection and assisting in the punch list verification.
- (6) Participating in the final acceptance inspection with the owner and other involved parties.

804 IAC 1.1-7-33.1 Project management

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 33.1. (a) The economic and professional health of a firm depends on an orderly, trackable method of project execution. A clearly defined project work plan, the key to the efficient management of project tasks, requires participation and input from team members, consultants, client representatives, and other key decision makers (financial experts, developers, lawyers, and contractors). The project manager defines consensus goals and coordinates tasks and scheduling. Team building depends on clear goals and good communication, with particular attention to decisions that influence the work of multiple team members. A project file initiated and maintained by the project manager is the comprehensive record of the project's life and a useful resource for future endeavors. The work plan must be congruent with all project-related contractual agreements (which are normally maintained in the project file). Scheduled quality control reviews are identified in the work plan; the project manager may request interim reviews in advance of established submittal dates. It is the project manager's responsibility to measure actual schedule/budget progress against the work plan yardstick, assess all discrepancies, and take the corrective action necessary to maintain project control. The project manager also:

- (1) maintains design quality during bidding, contract negotiation, and construction phases through administration of the project file;
- (2) oversees the firm's construction representative; and
- (3) monitors scheduled on-site quality reviews.

Finally, the project manager closes out project records and agreements and sets up future post-occupancy evaluation procedures.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Review the firm's project management manual or all important forms, checklists, and other practice aids if a manual doesn't exist.
- (2) Understand the procedure for assignment of project management responsibilities and the project manager's role in the acquisition process.
- (3) Participate in the development of a project work plan, including identifying goals, client requirements, responsibilities, a first-cut schedule, and the project record.
- (4) Review a work plan against all project-related contractual agreements.
- (5) Become familiar with team management, including role assignments, team communication methods, and frequency and maintaining the project file.
- (6) Review design documentation standards and understand expected levels of documentation at each phase of the project.
- (7) Attend quality reviews at project development milestones identified in the work plan.
- (8) Assist in preparing project status assessments, including schedule and scope variances and actions required to maintain project budget control.
- (9) Review the project management file for close-out activities, including contractual fulfillments, final fee for services, invoicing, and modifications, for example, change orders.
- (10) Attend post-occupancy evaluation trips to completed project sites.

804 IAC 1.1-7-34 Office management

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 34. (a) Although architecture is a creative profession, current techniques of practice require that the architect's office operate in almost the same manner as a commercial enterprise. Steady income must be generated and expenses carefully budgeted and monitored so that economic stability, essential to a successful practice, can be maintained. Accurate records must be kept for tax purposes and for use in future work. Established office requirements and regulations are essential to maintaining a smooth operation; office practice manuals are a typical tool for dissemination of this information. Profitable use of manpower requires budgeting of time and the development of schedules which are adhered to rigidly. The architect's relationship to the owner is established by contractual agreement. A contract establishes the duties and obligations of the parties. In order for a contract to be enforceable, there must be mutual agreement between competent parties, an acceptable monetary consideration, and it must be for a lawful purpose and accomplishable within an established time frame.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Reviewing the process of internal accounting and cost control systems for operation of the firm.
- (2) Participating in allocation of time to all elements involved in a total project from preliminary design through construction.
- (3) Reviewing professional service contracts for their structure, content, determination of responsibility, and enforcement procedures.
- (4) Reviewing the compensation structure as related to types of service rendered by the firm.
- (5) Reviewing current contractual relationships with consultants.
- (6) Researching legal obligations, limitations, and liabilities of professional service contracts.
- (7) Reviewing the firm's professional liability insurance policy and developing an awareness of potential practices and procedures which are not covered by the policy.
- (8) Assisting in the development of programs to publicize the firm's professional services and its expertise.
- (9) Participating in the firm's program for securing commissions for professional services through assisting in market research, prospect list preparation, and information gathering activities.
- (10) Assisting in developing firm brochures and advertising as elements of promotion.
- (11) Accompanying marketing staff on cold calls to prospects.
- (12) Participating in presentations to prospective clients and formal selection interviews.
- (13) Participating in the firm's internal budgeting (profit planning) process.

804 IAC 1.1-7-35 Professional and community services

Authority: IC 25-4-1-3

Affected: IC 25-4-1-7

Sec. 35. (a) To strengthen the profession's image, the architect must participate in public service programs. The architect must also maintain a supportive role with others involved in the construction industry. The various professional societies and other public service opportunities offer viable means of serving the profession and the community. Meaningful involvement requires participation beyond attendance at regular meetings.

(b) Possible intern activities include the following:

- (1) Participating in the work of professional societies through committee activity.

(2) Providing service to the public by contribution of expertise toward environment, planning, zoning, housing, and codes.

(3) Participating in civic programs and organizations.
